

ALBERTO FRANZINI

After playing football for 25 years I became an assistant coach in Eccellenza (we lost the playoff for serie D).

Later I started my real passion: player scouting.

I like to find the right players based on the characteristics of the team.

I am currently studying match analysis because I think it is an essential part of scouting, in particular the understanding of variable scenarios, invisible to big data.

The difficulty is not the player's analysis but it is to imagine the player within the team.

I have a degree in Biology, but I believe in a more humanistic and less scientific football.
