Profile

My professional experience in the sports field began in 2007, after finishing my last season as a player in the Juniors category. Starting from the basics and progressing to competitive levels, I gradually developed the idea that my passion for this sport extended beyond the field of play. The curiosity to understand the various roles within this world, how they interact, and the dynamics involved, led me at different times to pursue studies first as a coach and then as a manager.

As a young team manager, I had the opportunity to deepen the relationship between the playing field and the staff, an experience valuable in shaping my subsequent roles. Through my experiences as a young coach, I experienced the pressures of the bench, influenced not only by results but also by relationships with young athletes and adult managers.

The role of secretary allowed me to have an initial contact with the organizational aspects, relationships with other clubs, and the management of coaches. It also provided insight into the relationship between the sports club and the families of young athletes.

Aware of the importance of education, these experiences were accompanied by educational paths that allowed me to expand my knowledge. I believe that the competencies developed in this still relatively short journey include expertise in management related to human resources such as:

- Programming, planning, attention to detail
- Teamwork
- Leadership
- Problem-solving skills
- Decision-making ability
- Aptitude for Working with youth
- Stress and external pressure management
- Relations with clubs from other countries
- Computer and social media literacy
- Adaptability.
