Professional Summary

Naples, Italy
31/10/2003

Driven by a strong analytical mindset and a deep passion for data-driven insights, I thrive in environments that require precision, critical thinking, and strategic decision-making. My academic background in medicine has sharpened my observational skills, attention to detail, and deep understanding of the human body. This allows me to provide a unique perspective on how different body and muscle types influence athletic performance, injury susceptibility, and overall player potential.

With extensive experience in football analysis, I specialize in player scouting, match evaluation, and trend identification, utilizing both video scouting techniques and advanced analytical tools. My technical proficiency extends to video editing software and various performance analysis platforms, ensuring clear and impactful data presentation.

In addition to my analytical skills, my work in concierge services has strengthened my ability to communicate effectively, collaborate with diverse teams, and adapt to dynamic environments. I have also worked as a transcriptionist, further refining my command of both spoken and written English, ensuring accuracy and clarity in all forms of documentation and reporting.

Highly adaptable and self-motivated, I am comfortable working independently while maintaining excellent collaboration and communication skills. I handle sensitive information with integrity and am always eager to refine my expertise, embracing new challenges with a problem-solving approach. Whether analyzing performances, creating insightful content, or supporting decision-making processes, I bring precision, dedication, and a results-driven mindset to every task.
